I built a fullstack project for the model company. React JavaScript library was used to organize the web application. Bootstrap css library and react bootstrap component was used for the styling of the web application. Axios package was used to handle data fetching, React router version 6 was also used for page routing and protected routes implementation. The backend was written using Node js and Express framework. JSON web Token strategy was implemented. Mongodb was the database used for this project and all api were built personally during the course of the project. The project had the following implemented

- 1) Authentication and user authorization
- 2) Web socket
- 3) user registration
- 4) email verification
- 5) skeleton loading.
